Your key to safe driving

Driving is one of life's most valued and enjoyable pursuits. However, severe injury or illness—and even aging—can diminish a person's active lifestyle and threaten his independence. If you have safety concerns about your driving skills, the Mercy Driver Assessment Program is for you.

Our program is designed to determine your ability to drive safely, whether you're recovering from illness or injury, or are simply concerned about how aging has affected your driving skills. Our highly skilled staff offers complete evaluation of:

- Vision and depth perception
- Reaction time
- Driving knowledge
- Cognitive skills (if needed)
- Your ability to operate a motor vehicle
- Your driving limitations or special needs

By evaluating these various skills, our staff will determine if you can safely return to, continue, or start driving. We work with individuals with many types of disabilities, and with both beginning and experienced drivers. Our program serves a variety of abilities, ages and needs:

- Experienced drivers who now have a disability and are concerned about how it might affect their driving skills
- Older adults who have not yet learned to drive, but would like to
- Older drivers who are concerned about their driving abilities
